

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFATORY NOTE.

THE following Catalogue has been prepared by a Committee appointed by the Associate Alumni at their Annual Meeting of 1895, the work having been authorized also by the Trustees in October of that year. The general plan adopted is sufficiently explained on page 29 infra. The imperfections incident to the first attempt at such a comprehensive publication hardly need apology ; the only merit that the undertaking can claim is that of preparing the way for a much more complete and satisfactory record in the future. The errors and omissions, so far as known at the date of publication, are noted in the ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS at the end (page 244), to which the attention of those interested is specially called. The Alumni and all others receiving the Catalogue are earnestly requested to aid the work by sending all information and corrections to the Committee.

Special acknowledgment is due to our printer, Mr. William F. Humphrey, '82, not only for the excellence of his work, but for valuable assistance in the preparation and revision of the catalogue; to many others of the Alumni for their cordial and helpful cooperation ; and to the families of Presidents Hale, Jackson, and Rankine, for the portraits accompanying the record of these honoured names.

HOBART COLLEGE.

THE movement for the establishment in the State of New York, at some point west of Albany, of a College of liberal culture under Episcopal auspices, first found expression in a resolution adopted upon the suggestion of the originator of the movement, the Rev. Amos. G. Baldwin, by the Trustees of Fairfield Academy, April 10, 1812, petitioning Trinity Church, New York, for a grant of funds to that end. In the following year the Corporation of Trinity Church founded, in connection with the Fairfield Academy, a Theological School. In 1818, Bishop Hobart, recognizing the importance, if not necessity, of having in the western portion of his great Diocese a School of liberal culture, as well as a Theological School, communicated to friends in Geneva his plan to transfer the Theological School from Fairfield to Geneva, in connection with a "college and printing press" proposed to be established there; and in 1821 the transfer was made. The Principal of the Theological School, the Rev. Daniel McDonald, D.D., was the steadfast coadjutor of Bishop Hobart in this educational movement. In 1822, April 10, just ten years after the inception of the movement, the plan for the foundation of a College of general culture, by raising Geneva Academy, revived in 1821, to the rank of a College, was approved by the Regents of the University of the State of New York, and a provisional charter was granted. In 1824, new and more satisfactory provisions for theological instruction having been devised, the Branch Theological School, as it was then styled, was abolished, and its endowment was transferred to the proposed College. In 1825, February 8, the conditions of the provisional charter having been complied with, a full charter was granted under the title "Geneva College," and in 1826 the first class was graduated. Instruction began in the oldest of the college buildings, Geneva Hall, in the spring of 1822, and the class graduated in 1826 was the first class graduated from any Episcopal College established since the American Revolution.

The College thus founded was maintained with the greatest difficulty on the scanty endowment originally provided by subscription, and only through the unexampled devotion and self-denial of its Faculty, under the leadership of President HALE. Since 1851 its endowment has steadily grown through the generosity of its friends, and though still inadequate for its higher aims and increasing wants, has proved sufficient for providing a most thorough course of study in all essential departments.

At its first meeting after its organization in 1825, the Board of Trustees pledged itself to maintain in the College perpetually, in addition to the usual course of classical studies, an English Course in direct reference to the practical business of life. This was the first instance of action by a College of liberal culture to diversify its curriculum by the offer of a course other than, and additional to, the customary classical course. Three courses of instruction are now maintained, each of four years, the Classical Course, the Course in Letters and Science (the English Course above mentioned) and the Course in Letters with Latin. Provision is also made for special courses, and for a system of elective studies in the upper class work.

The College grounds, on which are grouped all the College buildings, are now over fifteen acres in extent. They are situated on Main street, in the most beautiful portion of the village, three-quarters of a mile from the business centre. To the east the prospect opens on Seneca Lake, at this point two miles or more in width, while to the west it includes the ridge, so-called, with its lawns and villas. The College land extends down to the lake, which is here ninety feet below the level of the street. The original College grounds embraced only the village lot on which stands Geneva Hall.

The buildings include Geneva and Trinity Halls, erected respectively in 1822 and 1837, and occupied by students' rooms; St. John's Chapel, of stone, of Early English architecture, completely and handsomely fitted for Divine Service, erected in 1862; the Astronomical Observatory, in 1870, an octagon tower with wings, and a revolving dome for the telescope; the South Building, 1880, of stone, with lecture-rooms and laboratories; the Demarest Memorial Library Building, 1885-'96, of stone, in Early English style, 36 feet by 117 and three stories in height, with room in its alcoves and galleries for one hundred thousand volumes; Alumni Hall, 1886-8, containing the Gymnasium, lecture rooms, geological and mineralogical cabinet and museum; the Boat House, on the water-line of the College grounds; and six substantial and commodious houses for the residence of the President and Professors.

The Library, almost destroyed in 1885, is now increased to thirty-five thousand volumes and some six thousand pamphlets, including a full collection of standard works in all departments of college instruction, and has also admirably appointed rooms for class and private study and reading. The Physical and Chemical Laboratories, Observatory, Cabinets and Museum of Natural History, Gymnasium and Campus, now furnish ample provision for all the best requirements of College life and work.

The College now offers to deserving students a large number of scholarships of considerable value, as well as many prizes for special scholarships; and with the great advantages of residence in the city of Geneva,—an ideal College town, long famous for its social culture as well as its surpassing natural beauty,—is able to give to its students opportunities of education, moral, intellectual and physical, which within its proper sphere leave little to be desired.

Full details of the present equipment, resources and curriculum of the College, and of other matters touched upon in the above historical sketch, will be found in the Annual Catalogue.
